Can You Create an Exhibit?

Activity for Families + Children

Week 2: Learn About Your Subject

What did you select for your exhibit subject?
Let's take some time to learn about it!

Here are some ideas on how you can learn more about what you picked:

- Ask someone you know what they know
- If you have access and with adult guidance, search online.
- Do you have any books about this subject? Are you able to digitally check ones out?
- If you have access, can you watch a movie or show about your subject?
- Be creative on where you can find out more!

Once you gather all sorts of things, be sure to write down facts and interesting information to support the subject of your exhibit. You can even audio or video record, draw or create something inspired by what you learned!

Last week I selected my sock drawer as the subject for my exhibit! To learn more about the socks in my sock drawer, I approached it a few different ways...

A) I asked my friends and family members about my socks. Particularly, ones they had given to me as a gift. I asked why they got them for me, where they got them and if they had any memories of me wearing these socks!

B) Some of my socks have interesting pictures on them. I went online and did some research into those pictures.

C) I also did some research on sock drawers in general. I wanted to have a general understanding of sock drawers before I would explain my own.
